About CEDA
CEDA – the Committee for Economic Development of Australia – is a national, independent, member-based organisation providing thought leadership and policy perspectives on the economic and social issues affecting Australia.

We achieve this through a rigorous and evidence-based research agenda, and forums and events that deliver lively debate and critical perspectives.

CEDA's expanding membership includes more than 900 of Australia’s leading businesses and organisations, and leaders from a wide cross-section of industries and academia. It allows us to reach major decision makers across the private and public sectors.

CEDA is an independent not-for-profit organisation, founded in 1960 by leading Australian economist Sir Douglas Copland. Our funding comes from membership fees, events, research grants and sponsorship.

As CEDA celebrated its golden jubilee in 2010, the political landscape during the past financial year reinforced why, 50 years on, CEDA’s role continues to be very important.

We faced a period of political and economic upheaval, including the election of a minority Federal Government, the emergence of the Greens and independents as powerful new political figures, changes of government in a number of states and significant global economic challenges.

It is times such as this that reinforce the importance of CEDA’s role delivering bipartisan discussion and research based policy analysis on critical policy issues.

50th anniversary celebrations

CEDA concluded its golden jubilee celebrations in 2010 at the November annual dinner, fittingly, with a respected and eminent speaker, Reserve Bank of Australia Governor, Glenn Stevens.

The annual dinner also marked the departure of CEDA chief executive David Byers after almost four years with CEDA. I would like to again thank David for his contribution to revitalising CEDA administratively and building a platform for our current growth.

New chief executive

After an extensive search, Professor the Hon. Stephen Martin was appointed at the end of November, taking up his position at the start of 2011.

In the first six months of his tenure, Stephen has led the reinvigoration of CEDA’s research and policy agenda and, under the guidance of the Board and its Nominations and Remuneration Committee, also overseen a review of CEDA’s constitution to ensure CEDA has a robust framework that can underpin its work for many years to come.

A significant stream of research publications are set to roll-out from late 2011 and throughout 2012 and the new constitution is expected to be finalised before the end of 2011; I commend Stephen’s work in overseeing these two priority areas.

CEDA staff

I would like to also commend the efforts of all CEDA staff for their work in delivering a highly professional, topical and varied program of events during the year.

From natural disasters, the patchwork economy and the mining boom, to international relations and the environment, the range of topics tackled by CEDA during 2010–2011 has been outstanding.
In particular, on an issue of personal interest to me, it has been pleasing to see women in leadership become a priority topic for CEDA, with an expanded events program rolling out across Australia and it becoming a research priority for the 2011–2012 financial year. One publication is already complete and a further work plan is currently being devised.

Governance issues

I would also like to thank CEDA’s Board of Directors for their contribution throughout the year and for their support to me as chairman.

There were a number of changes in 2010–2011. I would like to welcome new directors Russell Caplan, Ann Sherry AO, the Hon. Warwick Smith AM and Ian Stirling, and thank outgoing directors Phil Ruthven and Adrian Kloeden – both long-serving directors with CEDA – and Anne Howe.

I would also like to welcome the Hon. John Howard AC, Terry Moran AC, Dr Ken Henry AC and Warren Mundine to our Board of Governors and thank retiring governors, Professor David Pennington AC and Michael Chaney AO.

The Board of Governors meets twice a year to reflect on major issues facing the economic and social development of Australia and provide input to CEDA’s planning and priority settings. We are grateful to have the active engagement of such eminent and experienced Australians. Their willingness to participate is a testament to the value they place on CEDA’s role.

A new development has been the establishment of a Board Research and Policy Committee, chaired by Dr Doug McTaggart, to provide leadership and oversight to this aspect of CEDA’s work program. This was accompanied by a restructure of our Research and Policy Advisory Council, made up of eminent economists and policy analysts. The council now meets in workshop mode to identify and discuss priority issues and its members provide additional input as required to CEDA’s policy, research and thought leadership.

Conclusion

Finally, and most importantly, I want to thank CEDA’s trustees, members and sponsors. Their continued support and active engagement make our thought leadership and research possible.

It has been another successful year for CEDA and the work on our forward agenda and structure during this year will hopefully set CEDA up for another 50 years of success.

Geoff Allen AM
Chairman, CEDA
It is with great pleasure that I present my first annual report as Chief Executive of CEDA, after joining the organisation in January 2011.

The results across all areas have been very pleasing with strong financial results, increased membership and strong event attendance in 2010–2011. In early 2011 an ambitious and rigorous research agenda was also set which will see the research output from CEDA significantly increased in the coming financial year.

Finance

CEDA’s financial performance for 2010–11 has been outstanding and recognition of the esteem in which CEDA is held in the Australian community. This year we have been able to achieve an operating surplus of almost $362K, the best result posted in well over a decade. This result is well ahead of budget for the year and a significant increase on the previous year (excluding the payroll tax refunds of 2009).

Pleasingly, CEDA achieved growth across all aspects of operations compared to the prior year. The strongest growth area was sponsorship, up 30 per cent, with conference revenue and membership fees both growing at around eight per cent. Significantly, costs increased at a lower rate than revenue, providing the basis for our much improved profitability and the healthy surplus declared.

Restoring CEDA’s financial base has been a priority over the last three years, and I commend the work by our highly capable finance and administration group in driving these strong results.

Membership

CEDA’s members remain fundamental to ensuring we remain as Australia’s leading economic thought leadership and policy perspectives organisation, driving debate and discussion on the key economic and social issues that impact on Australia.

Overall, membership numbers have grown from just over 830 last year to 902 this year, an excellent result that confirms we are delivering discussion and debate on the right topics.

While it is pleasing that our overall membership numbers are continuing to grow, importantly our members also continue to be made up of a diverse cross-section of Australia’s leading business, government, academic and community organisations and come from a broad range of industry sectors.

Forums and Events

CEDA continued to offer a diverse range of topics and formats for events and forums during 2010/2011 with more than 300 events held across Australia and a combined attendance of more than 25,000. The calibre and variety of speakers and topics has been exceptional and included three addresses by the Prime Minister, and addresses by State Premiers, Federal and State Ministers, business leaders and key academics.
We introduced a number of new events and formats based on an agreed set of research themes – many of which, due to their relevance and popularity, will continue into the future. Linking CEDA’s research agenda with thought leadership forums is a significant way in which we can engage the Australian community and develop policy perspectives on the major issues confronting our nation.

The new formats include the introduction of “In 2020 a conversation with...” public events, which allow a facilitated conversation with high calibre speakers and opportunities for guest discussion; and the Breakfast on the run series, which allows members to hear from leading speakers early in the morning, without cutting into the business day.

Natural disasters across the nation also influenced the content of CEDA events, while other key focuses were on Women in Leadership, the Cost of Carbon series and the roll-out of more regional specific events to ensure CEDA is stimulating conversation about regional issues across Australia.

Research and Policy

During this financial year work on our major water research project, the Australian Water Project, continued and a population study, A Greater Australia: policies and framework, was announced. In addition to progressing these two major studies, which will be released in November 2011 (water volume I), March 2012 (population) and June/July 2012 (water volume II) a rigorous research agenda was set to complement these reports.

Work was started on a major energy and climate policy research series, Australia’s Energy Options, that will see three policy perspectives on energy, including nuclear and renewables, released between November 2011 and June 2012, followed by a major growth report in the second half of 2012.

Conclusion

I look forward to building on these outstanding results in the current financial year. I also want to thank CEDA’s incredibly talented and committed employees, National Chairman Geoff Allen, the Board of Directors, Board of Governors, Research and Policy Advisory Council and State Advisory Councils for their dedication and support. These results are only possible because of the hard work of many.

CEDA
CEDA – the Committee for Economic Development of Australia – is a national, independent, member-based organisation providing thought leadership and policy perspectives on the economic and social issues affecting Australia.

We achieve this through a rigorous and evidence-based research agenda, as well as forums and events that deliver lively debate and critical perspectives.

Research and policy

Our research program explores the key issues underpinning Australia’s economic growth. The quality and independence of CEDA’s research and policy program has earned it a reputation as one of Australia’s most highly respected business and economic policy organisations.

Forums and events

CEDA’s forums and events take place around Australia with high-profile speakers – CEOs, Federal and State Ministers, academics and thought leaders – on the policy challenges facing regional and national development. CEDA runs hundreds of events across Australia each year that range from large public events with addresses by the Prime Minister or state Premiers, to small private boardroom trustee briefings on key issues.
CEDA was founded by Sir Douglas Copland in 1960. Through our research and policy agenda and events and forums, CEDA today remains true to his vision to draw together the best minds to discuss and debate public policy to advance Australia’s economic interests.
Overview

Membership continued to grow in 2010–2011, increasing from 833 to 902 members across Australia, balanced across all industry sectors and including some of Australia’s leading business, government, academia and community organisations.

Pleasingly, CEDA’s national membership also continued to grow in 2010/11, increasing to 37 organisations. This growth reflects the first full year of CEDA’s enhanced national membership category, which provides greater acknowledgement and benefits to organisations taking a national approach to membership.

CEDA’s members remain fundamental to ensuring we continue as Australia’s leading economic thought leadership organisation, driving debate and discussion on the key issues that impact on Australia.

CEDA’s members enjoy discounted access to CEDA’s public program of forums and events and the opportunity to attend and host trustee-only private briefings on emerging issues. In addition they have access to CEDA’s research and publications.

Going forward, CEDA will continue to ensure our national membership proposition remains relevant, engaging and indispensable for organisations around the country.

Research and policy is a vital component of CEDA's mission to create an informed debate on Australia's critical public policy issues.

In addition to the annual Economic and Political Overview, other research highlights during 2010–2011 included progress on the Australian Water Project and the announcement of a new major population study, A Greater Australia: Policies and framework.

An ambitious and robust research agenda was also confirmed, which will see a significant number of research reports released during the 2011–2012 financial year. The forward research agenda aligns with the issues identified in CEDA’s Big Issues survey conducted in the last quarter of 2010. This also informed the new research project announced by CEDA, Australia’s Energy Options.

Another key initiative undertaken this year was the establishment of the CEDA Prize as part of CEDA’s 50th anniversary celebrations, which aims to support economic and public policy students.

Economic and political overview

CEDA’s Economic and Political Overview has been Australia’s pre-eminent annual briefing on the nation’s economic and political outlook for 30 years.

In the economic overview for 2011, NAB Group Chief Economist, Alan Oster and his colleague, Ben Westmore, analysed the gradual recovery from the global financial crisis but warned that the Federal Government’s emphasis needs to be on managing the upswing in the Australian economy.

In the political overview, Professor Kenneth Wiltshire AO, JD Story Professor of Public Administration, comprehensively reviewed a turbulent year in Australian politics, from the fall of Kevin Rudd to the election of the minority Labor Government.

Professor Jonathan Pincus engaged the public debate on Australia’s future population. He argued that economic immigration greatly benefits optional immigrants, though some sections of the existing population can be disadvantaged. This can be managed through careful urban planning and good social, environmental and economic policies.

Dr Michael Porter elaborated on regionalism in economic policy. He stated that Australia needs to create an agency of government that looks at regional issues, with secondments from key economic agencies, using the best relevant economic and technical skills available, plus Commonwealth and state treasuries, line departments and contracting private sector players.
Water

As part of the Australian Water Project, CEDA conducted a series of water events throughout the eastern states in November 2010 to engage Australia’s leading water policy expertise. Summaries of the policy perspectives of Professor John Langford of Uniwater and Professor John Briscoe of Harvard were released in February 2011. These documents are available on the CEDA website.

CEDA also engaged the Victorian Department of Sustainability and Environment as a key supporter of the Australian Water Project. The structure of Volume 1, Crisis and opportunity: lessons from Australia’s water reform, was agreed and contributors confirmed in the first half of 2011. This volume is set for release in November 2011.

Population

CEDA also announced A Greater Australia: Policies and frameworks with the editorship of Professors Jonathan Pincus and Graeme Hugo. The structure of the report was finalised and contributors confirmed during 2010–11, with a release date set for March 2012.

The forgotten issues of climate policy

To engage the public debate on climate change, CEDA released the policy perspective, A Taxing Debate: The forgotten issues of climate policy in June at the annual State of the Nation conference. This policy perspective included work from Geoff Carmody and highlighted key papers from Professor William Nordhaus and Dr Michael Porter drawn from CEDA’s A Taxing Debate: Climate policy beyond Copenhagen.

Professor Anthony Owen will be a contributing author to CEDA’s research project Australia’s Energy Options. He will review the economic viability of nuclear power in the first policy perspective to be released as part of this series in November 2011. This report is one of a number of major research projects scheduled this year as part of CEDA’s ambitious forward research and policy agenda.
Public debate

Throughout 2010–11 CEDA continued to engage in the public debate on major policy issues with CEDA staff making numerous contributions to media outlets on climate change, the national broadband network, Australia’s economic competitiveness, Australia’s international relations and related issues.

Forward agenda 2011–12

During the 2010–11 financial year an active forward agenda for CEDA’s research and policy unit was established. CEDA is now anticipating the launch of the following projects:

- Australia’s nuclear options policy perspective (part of Australia’s Energy Options series) – November 2011;
- Australian Water Project Volume I – Crisis and opportunity: Lessons in water reform – November 2011;
- Economic and political overview 2012 – February 2012;
- A greater Australia: Policies and frameworks growth report – March 2012;
- Renewables and energy efficiency policy perspective (part of Australia’s Energy Options series) – April 2012;
- Establishing a research and innovation framework policy perspective (part of Australia’s Energy Options series) – June 2012; and

Big Issues

In 2010 the Big Issues survey was conducted again to help provide the basis for determining CEDA’s forward agenda. A more detailed survey was conducted in partnership with IBISWorld of a select group and then in a new addition for 2010, a condensed survey was conducted in partnership with Business Spectator.

CEDA Prize

To engage the brightest minds in the search for the best policy ideas, CEDA launched an annual prize for excellence in economics and public policy on its 50th anniversary.

The 2010 CEDA Prize was won by Bethany Cooper for her essay, Urban water restrictions in Australia: Accounting for behavioural differences. The prize was awarded at CEDA’s 50th anniversary dinner in Melbourne in November, 2010. The winning essay is accessible from CEDA’s website.

The 2011 CEDA Prize winner will again be announced at the Annual Dinner in November.

Bethany Cooper won the inaugural annual CEDA prize for excellence by an economic or public policy postgraduate or honours student, which was announced as part of CEDA’s 50th anniversary celebrations.
Each year CEDA hosts national and state forums and events to contribute to and stimulate discussion on Australia’s economic development. They provide an open platform for discussion and debate, delivering feedback to policy makers and ideas to the business community. Through CEDA’s forums and events program attendees have access to some of Australia’s best minds, providing best practice knowledge, ideas and case studies.

In 2010–2011 CEDA ran 311 public events and trustee functions, attracting more than 25,000 attendees.

CEDA again held key national events including the Economic and Political Overview series to coincide with the release of CEDA’s EPO publication – State of the Nation in Canberra, and extended its Copland Program for emerging leaders, which diversified into Queensland, South Australia and Western Australia. Other themes addressed nationally in 2010–2011 included women in leadership, transport, emergency management and the cost of carbon.

National events or series

Economic and Political Overview

Every year CEDA hosts EPO events in capital cities across the nation during February and March, discussing economic, political and major policy issues facing Australia. This year’s EPO discussed population and regionalism as its additional key themes.

Key economic issues which were a focus of the 2011 EPO series were the financial recovery of the US, uncertainty in Europe and the significance of Asian economies for Australia. Domestically, economic issues concentrated on the implications of the resources boom, effects of natural catastrophes, the emergence of a multi-speed economy and productivity.

Political issues included concern over the longevity of the Gillard Government, its stated political agenda and apparent closeness to the Greens, Kevin Rudd’s removal as Prime Minister, political and governance approaches to skill shortages, global political uncertainties and the media and how they report the news.

An exceptional group of political and business leaders contributed EPO presentations including Minister for Finance, Senator the Hon. Penny Wong; The Westpac Group CEO, Gail Kelly; WA Minister for Housing and Transport, Troy Buswell, Australia and New Zealand Banking Group CEO, Mike Smith; NAB Group Chief Economist, Alan Oster; Victorian Treasurer, Kim Wells; SA Treasurer, Jack Snelling; Queensland Treasurer, Andrew Fraser; Premier of Tasmania, Lara Giddings; Reserve Bank of Australia Assistant Governor, Dr Philip Lowe; and The Grattan Institute, Project Director Productivity Growth, Saul Eslake.
State of the Nation

Held for the first time since the election of a minority government, the theme for CEDA’s 32nd State of the Nation was Rethinking Australia. The event, hosted in Canberra in June, provided quality insight and analysis on issues ranging from energy and climate policy, water, population and China, with presentations by senior members of parliament, key public servants, industry representatives and academics.

CEDA’s policy perspective A Taxing Debate: The forgotten issues of climate policy was also released during the conference. This document revisited key issues that had failed to be addressed in the climate policy debate.

Copland Program

The Copland Program, offered by CEDA in conjunction with leading education and management institutions across the country, provides a challenging course for emerging leaders from business, academia, community and government sectors, who are operating in a rapidly changing business environment.

2010 saw the successful expansion of CEDA’s Copland program into South Australia and Queensland, and in 2011, Western Australia, which all had fully subscribed programs.
Natural disasters

With devastating natural disasters including floods and cyclones in early 2011, events were held in Victoria, Queensland and New South Wales to consider the long and short term social and economic implications and management of natural disasters.

In Queensland, newly appointed Queensland Reconstruction Authority Chief Executive Officer Graeme Newton provided a detailed briefing to CEDA trustees on 31 March, 2011 on Rebuilding Queensland and a public half day forum, Managing major catastrophes, was held on 13 April, 2011.

NSW hosted Insurance Australia Group Chief Executive Officer and Managing Director, Mike Wilkins on the topic of Building Australia’s resilience to natural disasters on 11 April, 2011. While in Victoria, an event examining the issue of Financial management of major catastrophes: who pays? was held on 15 April, 2011.

Women in leadership

In 2010–2011 highly successful women in leadership events were held across Australia. Public events and trustee functions investigated gender issues including leading successful organisations, performance, work life balance, the pay gap and quotas.

Women in leadership will continue to be a priority topic for CEDA in 2011–2012.

Regional focus

The importance and contribution of regional economies was also a focus for CEDA in 2010–2011. All around the country CEDA ran events to discuss issues important to specific regions and to regional economic development. Events included:

- NSW: Annual dinner and conference Newcastle, 8 September, 2010 – Newcastle
- Victoria: Latrobe Valley – powering towards a new economy, 30 September, 2010 – Gippsland

World Competiveness Yearbook

In addition to the international network, CEDA also contributes annually to the World Competitiveness Yearbook survey which in 2011 was released in May.

The World Competitiveness Yearbook is produced by one of the world's top business schools, Switzerland based IMD, with the help of CEDA and other international partners. Its rankings and country-based data sets are used by business and governments around the world.

The survey ranks countries based on key areas including international trade and investment, domestic economy, employment, public finance, productivity and efficiency, the labour market, basic, technical and scientific infrastructure, education and management practices.

In 2011, while still performing well, Australia dropped from being ranked fifth in the world to ninth, due to a combination of factors including higher labour costs on the back of the mining boom, policy uncertainty such as the carbon tax, natural disasters and the high Australian dollar. At the same time, other countries more heavily affected by the Global Financial Crisis began to recover.

Overview

The past 12 months has been a consolidation period for CEDA reflecting the improved disciplines and controls implemented in the previous year.

CEDA experienced change at various levels of executive management, welcoming a new Chief Executive and two new State Directors, among others. These changes did not adversely impact our operations thanks to the exceptionally strong leadership team in place.

A substantial operating surplus of $362K for the year partly reflects these disciplines as well as the gradual increase in business confidence and willingness to engage in events held by CEDA.

Cash management strategies in place assisted in further growing CEDA’s cash reserves across the year with $2.5M cash in hand as at 30 June 2011.

Income statement

Total revenue of over $7.9M for the year represents an increase of 12.5 per cent over the previous year. Significant increases in Sponsorship and Research income and Membership subscriptions were the main contributors to this increase.

Conference registration fees remained stable compared to the previous year.

Balance sheet

Total Equity increased by $362K to $897K as a result of the strong surplus for the year. This represents an increase of 68 per cent on the previous year. Total assets increased by $429K to $4.118M.

Statement of cash flows

The balance of cash held at the reporting date was $2.464 million – an improvement over 2009–10 of $454K.
Operating results

A strong operating surplus of $362K was achieved for the year. Excluding the payroll tax refunds of $525K received in the 2008–09 year, this year marks the best surplus achieved by CEDA in many years. It represents an improvement of $292K or 422 per cent over 2009–10.

Total revenue

Total revenue increased by $881K or 12.5 per cent over 2009–10 mainly attributable to strong sponsorship support by business partners as well as research contributions and membership subscriptions. Conference registration income remained stable when compared to the previous year.
Servicing members and the wider community
Expenditure increased by $588K or 8.4 per cent over the previous year. This is partly attributable to an increase in functions held and growing attendance numbers when compared to 2009–10. The favourable variance between revenue and expenditure growth has provided the increased surplus for 2010–11.

Membership subscriptions
Membership subscriptions were strong during the year with an increase of $196K or 8.3 per cent over 2009–10 reflecting the high regard in which CEDA is held in the community.

Conference registrations
CEDA’s wide-ranging and high-quality event program continued another successful year with a small increase of $21K over 2009–10. This was despite still unsettled economic conditions.
Sponsorship income (conferences)

The high level of CEDA’s conference and event program, as well as CEDA’s high standing and credence in the business community, continues to attract strong sponsorship support. This is reflected by an increase of $329K or 31 per cent over 2009–10.

Research income was strong again during the year, continuing a similar trend over the past four years. An increase of $47K or 14 per cent over 2009–10 reflects the generous support received in this important area of CEDA’s activities.

Attendance rebounds on post-GFC recovery

Attendance at CEDA events was strong during the 2010–11 year. While 2009–10 numbers were down as a result of the prevailing economic conditions, the numbers achieved in 2010–11 were the strongest in the last six years. This reflects an increase of 12.8 per cent in attendances over the previous year.

CEDA undertakes objective research and discussion into issues affecting Australia's growth.

While CEDA emphasises productivity and efficiency issues, which are vital for our future development, it also recognises the need to consider the equity dimensions of government policy. CEDA's short and long term objectives remain the achievement of better policy outcomes for the Australian population through a range of economic research and advocacy. To achieve these objectives the entity strives to attract and retain quality staff who can work in partnership with the Directors, Board of Governors and Trustees in support of CEDA's projects and other initiatives. Staff strive to consistently meet best practice in all that they do and provide clear expectations of professional accountabilities and responsibilities to all stakeholders. KPI’s set aim to ensure goal congruence with the entity's objectives and are measured against audited results.

Notes to the financial statements for the year ended 30 June 2011

Note 1  Basis of preparation of concise financial report

The concise financial report has been prepared in accordance with the Corporations Act 2001, Accounting Standard AASB 1039 Concise Financial Reports (AASB 1039). The financial statements and specific disclosures required by AASB 1039 have been derived from the Company’s full financial report for the financial year. Other information included in the concise financial report is consistent with the Company’s full financial report. The concise financial report does not, and cannot be expected to, provide as full an understanding of the financial performance, financial position and financing and investing activities of the Company as the full financial report.

The financial report is prepared on the historical cost basis.

A full description of the accounting policies adopted by the Company may be found in Company’s full financial report.

Use of estimates and judgements

The preparation of financial statement requires management to make judgments, estimates and assumptions that affect the application of accounting policies and the reported amounts of assets, liabilities, income and expenses. Actual results may differ from these estimates.

Estimates and underlying assumptions are reviewed on an ongoing basis. Revisions to accounting estimates are recognised in the period in which the estimate is revised and in any future periods affected.

In particular, information about significant areas of estimation uncertainty and critical judgements in applying accounting policies that have the most significant effect on the amount recognised in the financial statements are described in the following notes of the full financial report:

- Note 1(c) – Impairment of Assets
- Note 5 – Trade and other receivables

Note 2  Revenue
