About CEDA
CEDA – the Committee for Economic Development of Australia – is a national, independent, member-based organisation providing thought leadership and policy perspectives on the economic and social issues affecting Australia.

We achieve this through a rigorous and evidence-based research agenda, and forums and events that deliver lively debate and critical perspectives.

CEDA’s expanding membership includes more than 800 of Australia’s leading businesses and organisations, and leaders from a wide cross-section of industries and academia. It allows us to reach major decision makers across the private and public sectors.

CEDA is an independent not-for-profit organisation, founded in 1960 by leading Australian economist Sir Douglas Copland. Our funding comes from membership fees, events, research grants and sponsorship.

This year once again CEDA continued to grow as a strong platform to discuss the issues critical to the continued economic and social success of Australia, through both research and events.

There has been no shortage of issues for the CEDA platform, with continued global uncertainty, falling commodity prices, and political unrest, with several first term state governments establishing their agendas and the Federal Government preparing to move into a highly contested election year.

There has been a great variety in the nature of forums and topics pursued during 2011–12, including energy, productivity, population, water, Women in Leadership and international perspectives from key trade partners or rising competitors.

In addition, the reinvigorated research agenda has delivered a number of timely and topical reports on key issues. Pleasingly, this momentum is set to continue in the coming financial year with a strong research agenda already agreed and underway.

CEDA staff

I would like to thank CEDA staff for their commitment and efforts throughout this financial year. The great results this year have only been possible through their dedicated work.

I would also like to welcome new staff who joined the CEDA team during the year. In particular, a new State Director was appointed in Western Australia – Liz Ritchie, formerly CEDA’s Associate Director in Victoria – who has done significant work during 2012 to rebuild and reinvigorate the CEDA brand in WA.

Governance issues

I would like to thank CEDA’s Board of Directors for their contribution and support. In particular I would like to welcome new director Dr John Edwards, and thank outgoing directors Dr Doug McTaggart and Warwick Smith AM.

I would also like to welcome Warren Mundine, the Hon. John Howard AC, Terry Moran AC and Dr Ken Henry AC to our Board of Governors and thank retiring governor Michael Chaney AO.

We were also saddened by the loss of our active governor Dr Ken Moss who passed away recently.

The Research and Policy Advisory Council has been restructured and rebuilt this year and is now known as the CEDA Council on Economic Policy (CCEP). Chaired by Professor Glenn Withers AO, the CCEP comprises of many of Australia’s best economists and policy thinkers, and guides CEDA’s research agenda.
Conclusion

Finally, I want to thank CEDA trustees, members and donors for their support during the year. CEDA could not deliver its ambitious and highly successful agenda without your support and guidance.

Geoff Allen AM
Chairman, CEDA
It is with pleasure that I present this year’s Annual Report, my first full financial year with CEDA, after joining the organisation in January 2011.

This year’s results have been extremely pleasing, with CEDA experiencing strong growth during 2011–12. Membership revenue continued to grow, event attendance increased compared to last year, reaching more than 26,000, and we produced five significant research publications.

Finance
Despite difficult economic conditions in Australia due to global economic uncertainty, CEDA’s importance to the business, government and academic community remains strong, highlighted by CEDA’s financial results for this year. CEDA achieved an operating surplus of $148k. Total revenue increased by two per cent with membership subscriptions the main factor contributing to this, assisted by slight growth in conference registration compared to 2010–11. Total equity also increased by 16.5 per cent.

Membership
CEDA’s members are essential to ensuring we continue to lead Australia in driving economic and social debate on key development issues.

At 30 June CEDA had 800 members. While this represents a slight drop from last year, this is due to a restructure of membership categories. National members are now only counted once, regardless of how many states in which they are active. Overall membership revenue increased by 9.3 per cent.

To ensure membership remains one of CEDA’s priorities, a National Membership Manager was appointed in March 2012 to focus on building and delivering to all our members and driving further engagement.

Thought leadership forums and events
Compared to 2010–11, CEDA event attendance continued to grow this financial year. CEDA held 290 events during the year with a total attendance of over 26,000. The thought leadership and events program continued to be of an excellent quality delivering high calibre speakers ranging from the Deputy Prime Minister, Opposition Leader and Federal and State Ministers to business leaders, academics and international experts.

This year CEDA also continued to strengthen its thought leadership and events focus outside traditional areas as well as linking its thought leadership forums with CEDA’s research agenda.

In addition to a significant program in mainland state capital cities, CEDA ran a number of events in Tasmania and the ACT, as well as relaunching in the Northern Territory. Regional events have also been held in a number of states and an expanded program will continue in the next financial year.
CEDA series events have also been hugely successful during the year with key series focusing on energy, Women in Leadership and productivity.

Research and Policy

A significant focus this year has been rebuilding the research agenda and delivering major research publications. During this financial year CEDA released five research publications. A population study, A Greater Australia: Population, Policies and Governance was released in March and Volume 1 of the Australian Water Project was released in November 2011. The final water report will be released in October 2012.

A major energy research series, Australia’s Energy Options, also began this year. The first two of three policy perspectives on nuclear energy and renewables and efficiency were released as part of this major research. This series will be concluded in the second half of 2012 with a third policy perspective on unconventional energy and the release of the major research report in November.

A retrospective on CEDA’s Victorian Women in Leadership series was also released in September 2011, ahead of a further policy perspective due to be released in June 2013.

I am pleased to report that the strong momentum created this year with our research agenda is set to continue next year with a further five reports underway and scheduled for release in the coming financial year.

Communications and media

Building CEDA’s brand through the media has also been a focus area to ensure CEDA enhances its reputation as Australia’s leading economic thought leadership and policy perspectives organisation.

Media coverage for CEDA grew this year through strategic promotion of our research agenda, key events, and editorials and opinion pieces in Australia’s leading newspapers.

CEDA also began using social media, with Twitter, LinkedIn, Facebook and Youtube accounts. CEDA’s social media platforms are gaining traction with great success and assisting to drive traffic to the CEDA website and discussion at events.

Significant work has also been undertaken to improve the CEDA website, with regular event reports, videos and images added, along with improvements to navigation. As a result visitors to CEDA’s website continued to significantly increase in 2011–12.
Conclusion

This year CEDA management has reviewed CEDA operations in a number of key areas and developed strategies to ensure we continue to build the CEDA brand and deliver high quality membership benefits. I look forward to continuing to see the benefits of this work in the coming financial year.

The work undertaken by CEDA staff this year has been of the highest standard and I would like to thank them all for their contribution.

Finally, I would like to thank CEDA’s National Chairman, Geoff Allen, Board of Directors and its Committees, Board of Governors, Council on Economic Policy and State Advisory Councils for their guidance and support during the year and I look forward to another successful year for CEDA.

Professor the Hon. Stephen Martin
Chief Executive
CEDA
CEDA – the Committee for Economic Development of Australia – is a national, independent, member-based organisation providing thought leadership and policy perspectives on the economic and social issues affecting Australia.

We achieve this through a rigorous and evidence-based research agenda, as well as forums and events that deliver lively debate and critical perspectives.

Research and policy

Our research program explores the key issues underpinning Australia’s economic growth. The quality and independence of CEDA’s research and policy program has earned it a reputation as one of Australia’s most highly respected business and economic policy organisations.

Forums and events

CEDA’s forums and events take place around Australia with high-profile speakers – CEOs, Federal and State Ministers, academics and thought leaders – on the policy challenges facing regional and national development. CEDA runs hundreds of events across Australia each year that range from large public events to small private boardroom trustee briefings on key issues.

Membership

CEDA’s membership includes 800 of Australia’s leading businesses and organisations, and leaders from a wide cross-section of industries, government and academia. CEDA’s formidable membership network allows us to reach major decision makers across the private and public sectors.

Funding

Our funding comes from membership fees, events and sponsorship.

History

Founded in 1960 by one of Australia’s most respected economists, Sir Douglas Copland, CEDA has never been aligned with any political group or ideology. Copland’s vision was to tap into the best minds across the country, and to harness the thinking that would advance Australia’s economic interests, and secure its prosperity. From the start, CEDA has been funded by members committed to a deeper, broader and more insightful public policy discourse on economic reform.
CEDA membership continues to be highly regarded in the business community. It is recognised as a platform for organisations in the private, public and not-for-profit sectors to showcase their interest in economic and social thought leadership, network, develop their staff and profile their business.

CEDA is renowned for the breadth and balance of its membership. Hundreds of organisations from across Australia are members of CEDA – a unique, influential group of leaders from business, government, academia and community organisations. The current membership represents peak bodies and senior decision makers from a broad cross-section of industries.

Total membership at 30 June 2012 is 800. The decrease in the total number of members compared to last year (902) comes as a result of the implementation of the national membership categories, which amalgamates several (two to five) state-level memberships into one national membership.

Revenue from membership subscriptions for the year was $2.78 million, an increase of $236K or 9.3 per cent over the previous year.

CEDA’s membership subscription runs on a 12-month cycle from the month of subscription, with fees payable annually in advance. Only those member fee receipts that are attributable to the current financial year are recognised as revenue.
Membership highlights

- Membership revenue increased $236k (9.3 per cent) on the previous year.
- CEDA now has five membership categories: Premier National, National, State Corporate, State Business and Individual.
- In late 2011 CEDA’s Board of Directors approved the creation of the role of National Membership Manager, which was subsequently filled in March 2012.

CEDA would like to acknowledge the following new national members in 2011–12:

- ACCIONA
- Asciano
- Australian Petroleum Production and Exploration Association
- Baulderstone
- Clayton Utz
- MWH
- TRILITY
- Rio Tinto
- Sinclair Knight Merz

Sinclair Knight Merz and Rio Tinto were other new national members in 2011–12. Clockwise from top is Sinclair Knight Merz, Non-Executive Director, Elizabeth Proust, at a Women in Leadership event in Brisbane in February, 2012 and Rio Tinto, Chief Development Officer Uranium, Andy Lloyd at the research policy perspective launch of Renewables and efficiency in Melbourne on 15 May, 2012.
CEDA’s research and policy work seeks to advance the public debate on key issues underpinning Australia’s long term economic and social development. CEDA carries out its research by working with independent experts and in partnership with universities, other not-for-profits and member organisations to highlight important issues and identify how public policy should be developed.

A significant undertaking to reinvigorate the research agenda has been under way over the past two years and this can be seen through the output during this financial year.

Five research reports – two major publications, two policy perspectives and a retrospective – were released during the year along with the Big Issues survey. The CEDA prize was also awarded in December and CEDA was again the Australian partner for IMD’s World Competitiveness Yearbook.

Additionally, CEDA’s Chief Executive presented several papers at national and international forums on innovation and competitiveness, and the Chief Economist developed a position paper on congestion charging following the Inventing the Future series in Western Australia. Each have been ancillary to the major reports but highlight how CEDA has been contributing to the public policy debate.

Research publications

Women in Leadership: Looking below the surface

In September, a retrospective of views from the Victorian Women in Leadership series was published examining the issue of unconscious bias and its influence on women in the workplace.

The document provided facts and figures to underpin a business case for resolving gender equity issues, while also highlighting some of the underlying unconscious biases that exist which often hinder women from achieving their full potential.

Australia’s Energy Options

Two policy perspectives were released this year as part of the major research theme Australia’s Energy Options – Australia’s Nuclear Options and Renewables and Efficiency, in October and April respectively.

These are the first two of three policy perspectives under this series, before the final research report is released in late 2012.

Australia’s Nuclear Options drew together five leaders in this field to explore nuclear technology, its economics, opportunities in the fuel cycle and its possible use to mitigate carbon emissions. It identified the need to develop an enabling policy framework so that Australia can deploy nuclear power if it becomes suitable to the nation’s economic and social conditions.
Renewables and Efficiency also drew together five experts to review existing energy policies around renewables, examine an alternative energy market model to improve energy efficiency and explore a model for better predicting which renewable technology to back. CEDA’s work identified the consequences of the current method of establishing robust climate change policy in the energy sector and recommended a method to maximise carbon mitigation over the course of the economic and political cycle.

The Australian Water Project

In November CEDA released a draft discussion paper, Crisis and opportunity: Lessons of Australian water reform. This was the first volume of two, under the Australian Water Project, a joint collaboration with Harvard University and Uniwater (a joint venture between the University of Melbourne and Monash University).

This volume, under the editorship of Professor John Langford and Professor John Briscoe, drew together 14 contributions from experts examining different aspects of Australian water reform including environmental, economic, agricultural and technological water management issues. The volume identified the success of Australia’s past water reforms and areas requiring further action.

A series of workshops were conducted in Adelaide, Brisbane, Sydney and regional Victoria in early 2012 to discuss the key findings of the initial volume. These discussions, in addition to three further contributions, will underpin the reform agenda to be articulated in Volume 2. The final report in the Australian Water Project will be released in October 2012.
Big Issues

CEDA, in conjunction with Business Spectator again ran the Big Issues survey in November. Through the survey, more than 1100 CEDA trustees and Business Spectator readers evaluated the performance of the Federal Government and assessed major policy challenges for Australia in 2012.

Key results of the survey were that the biggest issues facing Australia in 2012 would be productivity, managing economic growth as a result of the commodities boom and delivery of adequate infrastructure. Improving infrastructure was seen as the most important area for improving overall productivity.

CEDA Prize

In December CEDA awarded the second CEDA Prize to Adeline Tubb whose work examined the link between population ageing and government environmental expenditure. The prize is awarded for the best 6000 to 7500 word essay from an economic or public policy postgraduate or honours student on any topic related to the economic development of Australia.

Economic and Political Overview (EPO)

CEDA's annual Economic and Political Overview 2012 publication was released in February. In addition to the economic and political chapters, productivity and federal/state financial relations were also examined.

The release of the publication coincided with a successful event series held in capital cities across Australia.
Population

In March CEDA released a major publication on population, A Greater Australia: Population, policies and governance. Under the editorship of Professor Jonathan Pincus and Professor Graeme Hugo, the report drew together 17 contributions from experts across Australia and was the culmination of two years’ work.

The report provided analysis on population issues, including the impact of health and ageing, infrastructure, migration, climate change, defence, dispersion of population and education.

The report provided key recommendations around ensuring smooth delivery of services and infrastructure to accommodate population change.

World Competitiveness Yearbook

CEDA was again the Australian partner for the Switzerland-based IMD World Competitiveness Center in producing the 2012 World Competitiveness Yearbook. The results were released in May and CEDA trustees contributed to the Australian results by completing the executive business survey in March.

The IMD World Competitiveness Yearbook compares and ranks 59 countries on business competitiveness criteria and is the world’s most renowned and comprehensive annual report on the competitiveness of nations.

This year Australia slipped from being ranked nine to 15 in the world, a fall of 10 places in two years.

Key areas Australia recorded significant drops in were labour market competitiveness and international trade competitiveness, partly as a result of the high Australian dollar and skills shortages.
Forward research agenda for 2012

The research and policy agenda for 2012 has been commissioned and will involve the following publications:

- Australia’s Unconventional Energy Options – third policy perspective in CEDA’s Australia’s Energy Options series – to be released in September 2012. This policy perspective identifies the importance of having an enabling regulatory framework to ensure ongoing community support for emerging energy sources;

- The opportunity of crisis: A water reform agenda – volume 2 of the Australian Water Project – to be released in October 2012. This report makes recommendations to expand the flexibility and adaptability that has been established for the agricultural sector while making recommendations to improve it in the urban and environmental context; and

- Australia’s Energy Options reform agenda – the final instalment in this series – to be released in November 2012. This report identifies the importance that current energy price rises are a result of policy choice rather than economic inevitability. It also makes recommendations to put consumers in the centre of the energy sector.

Forward research agenda for 2013

The forward research and policy agenda for 2013 has been set and includes:

- The Economic and Political Overview 2013 – this will examine the future of work, Australia’s comparative advantage and how energy reform could result in a new period of stable energy prices among other key issues. It will be released in February 2013;

- Healthcare policy perspective – this will highlight Australia’s comparative advantage as an innovator in healthcare while identifying some of the funding challenges that are emerging for the sector. It will be released in March 2013;

- Women in leadership policy perspective – this will examine the barriers to women achieving full equality of opportunity in the workplace and in society more broadly. It will be released in June 2013; and

- Australia Adjusting is the major research report for 2013 and will examine possible future scenarios for Australia’s economy to 2025 and discuss policy issues in innovation and workforce development. It will be released towards the end of 2013.
Every year CEDA hosts national and state forums and events to contribute to and stimulate discussion on Australia’s economic development. They provide an open platform for discussion and debate, delivering feedback to policy makers and ideas to the business community.

Through CEDA’s forums and events program attendees have access to some of Australia’s best minds, providing best practice knowledge, ideas and case studies.

In 2011–12, CEDA ran 290 public and trustee events, which were attended by more than 26,000 people, up from more than 25,000 attendees in the previous year.

CEDA national events included the Economic and Political Overview series, State of the Nation in Canberra and the Copland Lecture, presented this year by international guest speaker Professor Ottmar Edenhofer. The Copland Leadership Program for emerging leaders was also held in most capital cities.

In addition to the strong state program of events in Sydney, Melbourne, Adelaide, Perth and Brisbane, this financial year CEDA also relaunched its events program in the Northern Territory and continued to build on its programs for Tasmania and the Australian Capital Territory.

There was also a continued focus on building a strong events program outside of the capital cities with events held in various locations in Victoria, NSW and Queensland.

CEDA’s signature State of the State events were also held in almost all states featuring state Premiers discussing priorities for their state.

Key speakers for 2011–12 included CPA Australia, Chief Executive Officer, Alex Malley at the NSW EPO in February; Queensland Treasurer, Tim Nicholls (left in panel) at the Queensland EPO on 23 February, 2012; and Minister for Resources and Energy, Martin Ferguson, at the Draft Energy White Paper launch in Melbourne in December 2011.
National event or series highlights

Economic and Political Overview

The 2012 edition of the EPO marked the 30th anniversary since the EPO was first published in 1982. In addition to focusing on key economic and political issues facing Australia, productivity and federal/state financial relations were also key themes addressed in this year’s EPO.

EPO events, held in each state capital city in February and March to coincide with the release of the EPO publication, again delivered a high calibre line-up of speakers.

State of the Nation

CEDA’s 33rd annual State of the Nation had the theme, Australia Unbound: Realising our place in the new global economy. Hosted in Canberra in June, the two day event provided insight from experts on critical issues for Australia including the transition of our energy sector, the role of the business community in economic reforms and Federal Budget implications.

Key speakers included senior members of parliament, industry experts and academics.
Copland Lecture

The Copland Lecture was delivered in March in Melbourne by Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change (IPCC), Working Group 3, Co-Chair, and Potsdam Institute for Climate Impact Research, Deputy Chair and Chief Economist, Professor Ottmar Edenhofer.

German based Professor Edenhofer is one of the world’s leading experts on managing the impacts of climate change, and his lecture focused on the impacts on the global energy supply chain as we continue to transition towards a low emissions future.

Women in Leadership

CEDA’s Women in Leadership events continued to be a success in 2011–12. Held across Australia, public and trustee events explored gender issues including strategies to boost female employment and diversity in the workplace, culture, breaking through perceived and unconscious bias, mentoring and gender targets.

Women in Leadership will continue to be a major focus in the coming year through both events and research, with a policy perspective due to be released in June 2013.

Key speakers from CEDA’s Women in Leadership series, clockwise from top left: Ingeus, Founder and Managing Director, Therese Rein in Melbourne in July 2011 and Federal Deputy Leader of the Opposition, Julie Bishop, in Perth in November 2011; International speaker, Professor Ottmar Edenhofer, presenting the Copland Lecture in March 2012 in Melbourne; and a panel of leading women at the New Breed CEOs event held in Sydney in May, 2012.
Expanding events focus

In 2011–12, CEDA has continued to focus on strengthening its events focus outside traditional areas.

In May, CEDA relaunched its events program in the NT, with the NT Energy Review event on the Ichthys gas project. The event explored impacts of the project on the NT economy and key issues in preparation for the project.

In addition a number of public and trustee events were held in Tasmania and the ACT delivering discussion on issues relevant to each state.

Events were also held in regional areas across Australia in 2011–12, to focus on regional economic development issues. Events included:

- NSW: SE corridor conference, 11 May, 2012 – Canberra
- Victoria: Regional economic development series, 2011–2012 – Geelong, Shepparton, Ballarat, Bendigo and Traralgon
- Queensland: Revitalisation of Ipswich CBD, 20 September, 2011 – Ipswich
- NSW: Hunter regional conference and dinner, 7 September, 2011 – Newcastle
- Queensland: Key drivers of economic development, 18 August, 2011 – Townsville

An expanded regional events series will be held in 2012–13 including events in WA.

State of the State

CEDA’s signature State of the State events continued around the nation in 2011–12, with state Premiers providing public policy discussions on critical economic, business and community priorities for the coming year. State premiers to present on the CEDA stage in 2011–12 included NSW Premier Barry O’Farrell, SA Premier Jay Weatherill, Tasmanian Premier Lara Giddings and the then Queensland Premier Anna Bligh.
COAG capital cities review series

In 2012, CEDA and the COAG Reform Council (CRC) jointly hosted the COAG capital cities review series following the release of the CRC’s review of planning systems for Australia’s capital cities. The discussion forums, held in Melbourne, Adelaide, Perth and Sydney, provided stakeholders with the opportunity to discuss the recommendations.

Productivity and energy

Productivity and energy were also the focus of the CEDA series in 2011–12.

The productivity series examined a range of issues around Australia’s poor productivity and discussed opportunities to increase efficiency and innovation. Events were held in NSW, WA, Queensland, Victoria, SA and Tasmania.

The energy series explored issues including resources, infrastructure, costs and policy. The 2012 Energy Series coincided with CEDA’s continued energy research series, Australia’s Energy Options, with events held in NSW, the NT, WA, Queensland, SA and Victoria.

State highlights

In addition to key themes selected for national event series, CEDA ran forums and events specific to each state informed by the interests and concerns of state members and trustees.

Below is a selection of forum and event highlights from around the nation in 2011–12, showcasing the depth and breadth of issues addressed.

There have been significant changes to the function of the communications unit during the year with key focus areas being on improving CEDA’s media presence, utilisation of social media, publication production of research and improvements to the website, both through more timely and interactive content and improved navigation, with further upgrades planned for the next financial year.

Media

Media engagement and coverage increased in 2011–12 with a total of 573 items published, with a significant increase in radio coverage.

CEDA’s media coverage included national, capital city, local and community outlets as well as industry specific media. Highlights included front page stories in both The Australian and the Australian Financial Review and multiple opinion pieces published in national newspapers by CEDA, Chief Executive, Professor the Hon. Stephen Martin.

The major media outlets for CEDA, publishing 20 or more items during the financial year, included:

- Australian Financial Review
- The Australian
- The Advertiser (Adelaide)
- Sky News
- ABC (radio)
- ABC (TV)
CEDA set-up social media accounts in late 2011 with Twitter, LinkedIn and Facebook, to run alongside an existing YouTube account. Work to actively manage and promote these platforms began in October 2011 with a focus on Twitter and LinkedIn. In particular, a strategy for promotion and management for Twitter began in February to coincide with the start of the events calendar, which has seen on average 100 followers gained each month.

Overall the social media strategy succeeded in gaining traction and engagement with CEDA members, media, business leaders, academics, thought leaders, politicians, government departments and the community. These platforms have also assisted in driving traffic to the CEDA website.

Followers, likes and web referrals as at 30 June, 2012

Twitter: 518

Facebook: 89

LinkedIn: 391

Website visits by social media referral: 1269
Website

Significant work has been undertaken to improve the content and navigation of the CEDA website during the financial year, to increase its usability and usefulness for members and better promote the work CEDA undertakes.

A focus has been to provide timely reports on discussions at CEDA public events. This financial year 105 news items were published on the CEDA website, a huge increase from the 22 published in the previous financial year. As a result page visits to news pages more than doubled, jumping from 11,148 in the previous financial year to 25,780.

Visits to the news pages accounted for over 20 per cent of web traffic, compared to only 10 per cent last year, indicating that visitors find these pages a valuable source of information.

Overall the CEDA website had an increase in visits of over 20 per cent compared with last year, with more than 122,000 visits.

Importantly, a balance was managed between maintaining loyalty with returning visitors and also attracting a new audience to the website (almost 70,000 were new visitors, up more than 15,000 compared to last year).
Web visits from mobile devices increased by 200 per cent during the year and CEDA will introduce a mobile website in the 2012–13 financial year to improve access for this increasing group of users.

Three new video snapshots were also produced in 2011–12 and made publically available on the CEDA website and on CEDA’s YouTube Channel.

The videos, which were released in May, provide an overview of CEDA’s policy perspective Australia’s Energy Options: Renewables and efficiency. They have received more than 184 views.

These videos are the first of a new series of videos which will be produced to coincide with each new research launch in the coming financial year. The aim of these videos is to provide members and the general public with short, easy to access overviews of key information from CEDA’s research agenda.

Quantitative market research

CEDA also undertook quantitative market research for the first time since 2009 in March 2012. The purpose of this research, undertaken as a survey provided to CEDA trustees, was to provide a basis for benchmarking in the future given a number of significant changes at CEDA and to confirm anecdotal evidence around how our members perceive the benefits and value of CEDA membership, members’ preferences in key areas and member brand and activity awareness.

This research will help drive further improvements to the delivery of CEDA activities and how we interact with members.
International counterparts network

CEDA continues to be an active member of an international network of independent, business-based public policy organisations, participating in a number of discussions throughout the year. This network shares knowledge and research, and provides CEDA and its members with important links to international business.

In 2011, the annual international conference was held in Brazil, with Conselho Empresarial Da America Latina (CEAL, The Business Council of Latin America) hosting the conference. With the theme Enterprise and Entrepreneurs in the Americas in 2022, the conference explored the integration of the Americas, business internationalisation, and competitive strategies in global markets and regional blocks.

In the coming financial year, the Institut de L’Entreprise will host a planning meeting in Paris from 4 to 5 October, 2012, for the 2013 conference.

World Competitiveness Yearbook

In addition to the international network, CEDA also contributes annually to the World Competitiveness Yearbook survey, released each year in May.

The World Competitiveness Yearbook is produced by one of the world’s top business schools, Switzerland based IMD, with the help of CEDA and other international partners. Its rankings and country-based data sets are used by business and governments around the world, with CEDA Trustees contributing to the Australian data.
The survey ranks countries based on key areas including international trade and investment, domestic economy, employment, public finance, productivity and efficiency, the labour market, education and management practices, and basic, technical and scientific infrastructure.

In 2012, Australia slipped six places to 15 in world competitiveness rankings. Key factors in Australia’s poor ranking included a drop in labour market competitiveness, the high Australian dollar, skills shortages and the re-emergence of industrial relations as a key national issue. The high Australian dollar and strong terms of trade have also resulted in a drop in Australia’s international trade competitiveness which has occurred at the same time as many other countries’ economies have slowed. With the exception of the mining sector, this has made Australian exports less competitive and negatively impacted industries such as tourism, retail and manufacturing.

CEDA expertise shared at international conferences – Vienna and Singapore

The expertise of CEDA has been recognised internationally this year, with CEDA, Chief Executive, Professor the Hon. Stephen Martin, speaking at two prestigious international events.

Professor Martin addressed the International Federation of Accountants Conference in March in Vienna, where he spoke on the sovereign debt crisis.

In May, Professor Martin also presented to the Global Science and Technology Forum Conference in Singapore.

Overview

The past 12 months has been a period of growth for CEDA, both in revenue and in staffing, reflecting the continued rise in CEDA’s standing within the business community.

An operating surplus of $148k for the year reflects the difficult operating conditions faced by many businesses throughout the year but also shows a continuing willingness on the part of business, government and academia to engage in events held by CEDA.

Cash management strategies continue to provide a strong platform for growth in cash reserves, with CEDA’s cash holdings now totalling $3.158m.

Statement of comprehensive income

Total revenue of more than $8m for the year represents an increase of two per cent compared to the previous year. Significant increases in membership subscriptions were the main contributor to this increase, more than offsetting a small decline in sponsorship revenue. Conference registration fees saw slight growth compared to the previous year.

Statement of financial position

Total equity increased by $148k to $1.046m as a result of the strong surplus for the year. This represents an increase of 16.5 per cent on the previous year. Total assets increased by $478k to $4.596m.

Statement of cash flows

The balance of cash held at the reporting date was $3.158m – an improvement over 2010–11 of $694k.
Operating results

An operating surplus of $148k was achieved for the year. Given the difficult operating environment in the 2011–12 year, this is a respectable result achieved on the strength of CEDA’s highly regarded position in the Australian business landscape.

Total revenue

Revenue growth continues

Total revenue increased by $151k or 1.9 per cent over 2010–11 mainly attributable to strong membership revenue growth offsetting a small reduction in sponsorship income. Conference registration income remained stable when compared to the previous year.
Servicing members and the wider community
Expenditure increased by $364k or 4.8 per cent over the previous year. This is partly attributable to an increase in staffing as we position the organisation to provide even higher levels of service and outputs for members.

Membership subscriptions
Membership subscriptions were strong during the year with an increase of $236k or 9.3 per cent over 2010–11, reflecting the high regard in which CEDA is held in the community.

Conference registrations
CEDA’s wide-ranging and high-quality events program resulted in another successful year with a minor decrease of $7k on 2010–11. This was despite continuing unsettled economic conditions.

Sponsorship support

The high standard of CEDA’s conference and event program, as well as CEDA’s high standing and credence in the business community, continues to attract strong sponsorship support. However, the difficult operating environment saw a reduction of $217K compared to 2010–11.

Research support

Research income was strong again during the year continuing a similar trend over the past five years. An increase of $56k or 14.5 per cent over 2010–11 reflects the generous support received in this important area of CEDA’s activities and its increasing relevance to the wider business community.

Continuing growth in attendance

Attendance at CEDA events was strong during the year, increasing by 2.4 per cent over 2010–11. While 2009–10 numbers were down as a result of the prevailing economic conditions, numbers have rebounded over the past two years thanks to the quality of our offerings.

2) The Company’s principal activity is as an independent, apolitical organisation made up of business leaders, academics and others who have an interest in, and commitment to, Australia’s economic and social development. CEDA undertakes objective research and discussion into issues affecting Australia’s growth.

   While CEDA emphasises productivity and efficiency issues, which are vital for our future development, it also recognises the need to consider the equity dimensions of government policy. CEDA’s short and long term objectives remain the achievement of better policy outcomes for the Australian population through a range of economic research and advocacy. To achieve these objectives the entity strives to attract and retain quality staff who can work in partnership with the Directors, Board of Governors and Trustees in support of CEDA’s projects and other initiatives. Staff strive to consistently meet best practice in all that they do and provide clear expectations of professional accountabilities and responsibilities to all stakeholders. KPIs set, aim to ensure goal congruence with the entity’s objectives and are measured against audited results.

Notes to the financial statements for the year ended 30 June 2012

Note 1 Basis of preparation of concise financial report

The concise financial report has been prepared in accordance with the Corporations Act 2001, Accounting Standard AASB 1039 Concise Financial Reports (AASB 1039). The financial statements and specific disclosures required by AASB 1039 have been derived from the Company’s full financial report for the financial year. Other information included in the concise financial report is consistent with the Company’s full financial report. The concise financial report does not, and cannot be expected to, provide as full an understanding of the financial performance, financial position and financing and investing activities of the Company as the full financial report.

The financial report is prepared on the historical cost basis.

A full description of the accounting policies adopted by the Company may be found in the Company’s full financial report.

Use of estimates and judgements

The preparation of financial statements requires management to make judgments, estimates and assumptions that affect the application of accounting policies and the reported amounts of assets, liabilities, income and expenses. Actual results may differ from these estimates.

Estimates and underlying assumptions are reviewed on an ongoing basis. Revisions to accounting estimates are recognised in the period in which the estimate is revised and in any future periods affected.

In particular, information about significant areas of estimation uncertainty and critical judgements in applying accounting policies that have the most significant effect on the amount recognised in the financial statements are described in the following notes of the full financial report:

- Note 1(c) – Impairment of assets
- Note 5 – Trade and other receivables

Note 2 Revenue

Independent Auditor's Report
To the Members of Committee for Economic Development of Australia

Report on the concise financial report
The accompanying concise financial report of Committee for Economic Development of Australia comprises the statement of financial position as at 30 June 2012, the statement of comprehensive income, statement of changes in equity and statement of cash flows for the year then ended and related notes, derived from the audited financial report of Committee for Economic Development of Australia for the year ended 30 June 2012. The concise financial report does not contain all the disclosures required by the Australian Accounting Standards.

Directors responsibility for the concise financial report
The Directors are responsible for the preparation and presentation of the concise financial report in accordance with Accounting Standard AASB 1039 Concise Financial Reports, and the Corporations Act 2001. This responsibility includes establishing and maintaining internal control relevant to the preparation of the concise financial report; selecting and applying appropriate accounting policies; and making accounting estimates that are reasonable in the circumstances.

Auditor's responsibility
Our responsibility is to express an opinion on the concise financial report based on our audit procedures. We have conducted an independent audit, in accordance with Australian Auditing Standards, of the financial report of Committee for Economic Development of Australia for the year ended 30 June 2012. Our audit report on the financial report for the year was signed on 3 September 2012 and was not subject to any modification. The Australian Auditing Standards require that we comply with relevant ethical requirements relating to audit engagements and plan and perform the audit to obtain reasonable assurance whether the financial report for the year is free from material misstatement.
Our procedures in respect of the concise financial report included testing that the information in the concise financial report is derived from, and is consistent with, the financial report for the year, and examination on a test basis, of evidence supporting the amounts and other disclosures which were not directly derived from the financial report for the year. These procedures have been undertaken to form an opinion whether, in all material respects, the concise financial report complies with Accounting Standard AASB 1039 Concise Financial Reports.

We believe that the audit evidence we have obtained is sufficient and appropriate to provide a basis for our audit opinion.

Independence

In conducting our audit, we have complied with the independence requirements of the Corporations Act 2001.

Auditor's opinion

In our opinion, the concise financial report of Committee for Economic Development of Australia for the year ended 30 June 2012 complies with Accounting Standard AASB 1039 Concise Financial Reports.
